AUSTRALIAN BALLOT AFTERNOON RECEPTION USED IN CHURCH

Dr. and Mrs. Sowers Present Their Epworth Leaguers Make Their Election Interesting.

> Street Chapter Ran Blanket Ballots Through a Clothes Wringer.

Voting for church society officers a la Australian system is an innovation that has started in Washington and threatens Miss Ashten, a dinner by Mrs. John Davis and a lecture at the Washington Club by to be immensely popular.

It was an orought about by the determination of the Epworth Leaguers of the Fifteenth Street Methodist Church to make every one of their meetings interesting and attractive. The annual meeting and election of officers was to take place tast night and it did take place and the novel voting scheme proved everything that was expected of it. The Leaguers said that their president, Mr. Frank J. Metcaff, was the originator of the idea. All this was the reason, therefore, why with a center piece of orchids in the same shade. a really real ticket," said one pretty girl to another.
"Weil, maybe when we become old enough we can," replied her companion. All this time around the sample ballot there was a lively discussion going on and one member after another would be drag-ged into a corner and "electioneered." Then the voter would break away full of conviction and determination and slip over to the booth. This was an attractive arrangement This was an attractive arrangement made to accommodate two voters at one time. There was plenty of bunting draped around it and flags and lengue banners were added to increase its attractiveness. Close to the booth was the ballot box, the most interesting feature of the Whole the most interesting reather of the whole arrangement. From a short distance it presented the appearance of a circular roll of bunting with a crank attachment. Closer inspection showed that it was a small washtub, with a clothes wringer attached to one side. Two tellers stood here, and while one cancelled the name of the voter, the other wound the hallot. he voter, the other wound the ballot through the rollers of the wringer.

It was all very, very funny and everybody laughed and jested as everybody else voted.

"On, what a sname that women can't vote

The first evening reception of the season was held last night at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Sowers, the pecasion being the formal presentation or their only daughter to Washington society.

Owing to a serious cold which confined Mrs. Sowers to her bed the hostess of the evening was Mrs. E. H. Trust of Baltimore, the aunt of the debutante.

Dr. Sowers and Mrs. Trust received their guests in the main drawing-room to the right of the hall. The mantels of this and the adjoining drawing-room and large dining-room beyond were banked with roses shading from pink to-red, while in other parts of the room violets, mignon-Miss Sowers, who is a landsome and distinguished looking girl, were a gown of delicate green satin and cream late. Admiral Richard W. Meade, U. S. N., delivered a lecture last night at the Congregational Charch, corner of Tenth and to streeds under the amplices of the National Geographic Society.

The subject of the lecture was a voyage made by the lecturer twenty-five years ago, from the eastern to the western shores of the United States, in the man-ofwar Marragansett. That part of the trip around the southern extremity of the American continent formed the basis of an extractly interesting lecture, showing ail toe characteristic features of the antural scenery and geological formation of the country in the region of the Straits of Magellan added to the value of the descriptive address.

The lecturer described the first voyage
through the straits, that of Magellan, and reviewed the many attempts of the
